Trade Remedial (Anti-Dumping and Safeguard Measures)

Are you

- An executive dealing with corporate affairs and business decisions related to international trade?
- A corporate lawyer advising clients on trade remedy laws and related compliance?
- Any others interested in the application and implementation of trade remedy laws?

If you are

This three-day CIRC Training Programme on Trade Remedial Measures can strengthen your professional skills on how to address issues relevant to trade remedial measures which will help you to maintain your position in domestic and foreign markets, especially at this time when trade protectionism is growing.

You will gain the following

- Knowledge of WTO Agreements and Indian laws and practices on anti-dumping, anti-subsidy and safeguards issues
- Understanding of the procedure involved in making applications before the requisite authorities
- Understanding of the technicalities of the investigations conducted

Rationale

Economic recession is leading to greater protectionism around the world. Given the current economic situation, many industries may not be able to compete with imports. India has laws and rules on all the three trade remedies available under the WTO framework, i.e. anti-dumping duties, countervailing duties and safeguard measures. Knowledge of these laws and their operation will be useful for the industry as well as for other relevant stakeholders. This programme will provide practical inputs on issues such as calculation of dumping margin and injury and protection of one's exports from the imposition of trade remedial measures in export markets.

Content

- WTO basic principles and an overview of GATT and specific trade remedy agreements
- Indian anti-dumping duty law and practice on procedural issues
- Concepts and issues in dumping margin calculations
- Issues of injury and causal link
- An overview of use of trade remedies in India and sharing of experiences
- Indian countervailing duty law and practice including an appraisal of Indian schemes
- Indian safeguard duty law and practice and product-specific safeguards on imports from China

- Strategies and approach to anti-dumping, anti-subsidies and safeguard measures against Indian exports to major trading partners
